

Dr. Copeland Says He'll Take Tugs He Needs

If Weather Turns Warm and Garbage on Piers Menaces Health the Commissioner Declares He Will Act

Owners Refuse to Sell Say They Will Only Furnish Boats if Allowed to Operate With Non-Union Crews

In an effort to raise the embargo on garbage, the Marine Workers' Affiliation last night telegraphed Acting Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, asking that a navy tug be placed at the disposal of the Street Cleaning Department. The request followed the refusal of private boat owners to lease or sell boats for the purpose, or to permit the crews of the unions offered to provide free of charge to operate them.

The great piles of garbage on the piers and dumps in three days of warm weather, Dr. Copeland says, would be a source of "imminent peril" to the health of the city. In such a condition, he declares, the Board of Health will commandeer as many boats as it may need to move the garbage. The unions and the city officials on Saturday arranged to take care of the city's garbage with tugs brought from another city. When the time came for them to begin operating yesterday, however, the agent who was to provide them announced that the private boat owners had succeeded in preventing delivery. The city officials then took up negotiations with representatives of the Cahill Towing Company, which for some years has done this work.

Tug Owners Refused
Commissioners McStay, of the Street Cleaning Department, and Dr. Copeland represented the city; Thomas L. Delahanty, William A. Maher and F. Paul A. Vaccarelli, the unions, and Messrs Card and Pollard, with William Martin, their counsel, the towing company. The city representatives asked to be permitted to charter tugs without crews. This was refused, the owners insisting that unless they were allowed to work with non-union crews of their own choosing the boats could not be had.

Mr. Delahanty for the unions then offered to provide union crews without charge to anybody for the purpose of clearing up the accumulation of waste. This, likewise, was refused. Then Captain Maher offered to buy two boats.

"I know you've got the money," counsel replied, "but the boats are not for sale."
After the conference Dr. Copeland declared that the representatives of the unions had shown a desire to cooperate, but that the boat owners persisted in "their policy of utter indifference to the public's needs."

"Mr. Bonnyne talks about my firing blank cartridges and this morning exploded a 22 calibre shell," said Dr. Copeland. "My answer to that is that if we reach that point where boats are necessary to protect the public health we'll explode a 16-inch shell and commandeer as many of Mr. Bonnyne's boats as we may need."

Bargemen Can't Go to Work
The vote of the tidewater boatmen to accept the compromise offered by the private boatowners, through L. V. O'Connor, was accepted in part by the Marine Workers' Affiliation yesterday. So far as it relates to men operating grime and coal boats for $110 a month the arrangement was approved. That part of it, however, which fixed $100 a month for men employed on scows was disapproved.

An attempt was made by friends of O'Connor to obtain a withdrawal of the charges made against him by Thomas L. Delahanty and others of the leaders. Delahanty refused to withdraw anything and reiterated his charge that O'Connor is "an interloper."

"Settlement," according to the strike leaders, does not materially help the boat owners.
"It will not put a man to work," said Mr. Delahanty, "and it will not return a man to a barge. The fact is that these men have remained on the barges. They did not have the means to secure quarters ashore, in many instances, and are not to be criticized for not having moved. But until the bosses succeed in getting tugs to move the barges they will be of no use to them."

There never was a time when they could not have had $110 a month if there were tugs available to tow the barges. That is the crux of the situation."
O'Connor refused to discuss the situation yesterday.

General O'Ryan Mustered Out of Service in Army Can Return as Head of State Guard if Willing to Wait Until July for Pay

Major General John L. O'Ryan, commander of the 27th Division, was mustered out of the army yesterday, with Brigadier General Charles I. DeBevoise and George A. Wingate. The former commanded the 53d Infantry Brigade, and the latter the 52d Artillery Brigade. Both were commanders of Brooklyn National Guard units before the war.

Thirty-three staff officers of the 27th also received their discharges yesterday, and the records and document files of the division were packed up at the Hall of Records, ready for shipment to the War Department at Washington. Among the discharged were: Lieutenant Colonel Kincaid, McLeer and Sternberg; Colonel Montgomery, division surgeon; Lieutenant Colonel Hallahan; Chaplains Kelly and Jaynes; Majors DeKay, Peterson, Tupper, Carney and Moniz; Captains Eddy, Peppard and Girard.

A dispatch from Albany quoted General O'Ryan as saying that if General O'Ryan requests to be reinstated as head of the New York State Guard he would be so designated, but that the general would have to wait for pay until funds become available July 1.

Heller to Manage Commercial Bureau Of Russian Soviets

The Russian Soviet government has appointed as head of its commercial bureau here A. A. Heller, organizer and formerly manager of the International Oxygen Company of New Jersey, it was announced yesterday.

Another addition to the staff is Dr. L. Hourwich, statistician, writer on immigration and economics, who is to assist Heller, who is head of the Soviet publicity mission here, in compiling facts and statistics on economic conditions in Russia.

C. A. K. Martens is to continue head of the entire Soviet mission. Heller, who has been at Harvard University, is expected to assume his duties in New York on Thursday or Friday.

Some Big Firms Interested

Among the 500 firms which have applied are the following: Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Maurer & O'Meara Company, paper; R. C. Blackwell & Co., food products; Viele, Blackwell & Buck, exporters and engineers; Baltimore Pearl Hominy Company; John Lucas & Co., paints and varnishes; Victory Manufacturing supplies; carbon paper and typewriter supplies; Cutta Percha and Rubber Manufacturing Company; Moskowitz Brothers, children's dresses.

When and if trade with Russia is resumed, Heller, who is head of the Soviet mission, will become one of the largest export agencies in the world, as the Russian Soviet government is to be the sole buyer in foreign countries for the entire population of Russia.

Will Spend a Billion
"Even figuring the consumption of imports from the United States as low as $10 a head," said Mr. Nuorteva, "that would mean purchases here by the Soviet mission of a billion dollars a year."

It was also announced at the Soviet mission that Nicholas M. Goldenweiser, accredited representative in the United States of the All-Russian Zemstvo Union, had tendered his credentials to the Soviet mission and had offered his personal allegiance to the Soviet government through Mr. Martens.

Mr. Goldenweiser, who is a member of the Russian bar, came to this country in 1915 and lectured at the University of Wisconsin. He is a writer on art and economics and was employed in the latter capacity by the United States government to assemble statistical and economic data for the use of the United States commissioners at the peace conference.

Copeland Reiterates Decision to Resign Health Commissioner Denies Breach With Mayor; Plans Changes

Health Commissioner Copeland reiterated yesterday his purpose to resign as soon as certain departmental matters of a constructive nature are effected. Dr. Copeland denied vigorously that he has had any differences with Mayor Hylan, and said his decision to quit was not due to any criticism of him by labor organizations or any one else.

"My private interests and professional obligations," he said, "demand my early return to my practice. My stay in the department means a loss of $1,000 a month to me. It is only because of my high regard for Mayor Hylan and my appreciation of his unflinching and enthusiastic support that I have remained this long."

"In the near future, unless unforeseen health emergencies arise, I must return to my own concerns. However, I am not excited about it, and I feel I can usefully serve the city for a little time yet."

"There are certain problems, particularly the drug evil and industrial hygiene, that I wish to see on their way before I quit."

Investigation by the Brainard family disclosed that Archer had adopted the name of Grimwood because he had been employed in London by a barrister of that name. This man died and it is said Archer took his passport.

He was given a hearing for forgery at the Old Bailey after his arrest in London, but was discharged from custody on March 4 of this year. Justice Colahan signed an order yesterday serving Archer by publication in the annulment suit.

Labor Party Has Chicago Guessing At Election To-day

Unions Will Conduct Strike in Favor of Ticket; Four Candidates, Including Thompson, Claim Victory

Special Correspondence
CHICAGO, March 31.—The new Labor party was to-night the perplexing problem to political prognosticators who were trying to pick the winning candidates in to-morrow's municipal election. This young party, which entered the arena exactly three months ago, was admitted by adherents of the Republican, Democratic and Independent candidates for Mayor to have complicated the situation to an unexpected degree.

Out of a normal voting population of approximately 700,000 a "silent vote" aggregating upward of 250,000 will cut the principal figure in deciding the mayoralty contest. The managers of Mayor William Hale Thompson, the Republican candidate, boasted to-night that he would be re-elected by upward of 125,000 plurality. On the other hand, the managers of County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, the Democratic candidate, were making claims just as strong.

Victory Claimed by All
The friends of Maclay Hoyne, State's Attorney, who is the independent non-partisan candidate, were claiming election by a plurality of around 75,000. Sweitzer, Hoyne and Thompson have indulged in probably the bitterest personal campaign seen here in years. So acrimonious did this campaign become that there were frequent cases of fist fights.

It was largely because of this situation that the Labor party's managers were making for their candidate, John Fitzpatrick, the most remarkable claim of the whole campaign. Morton L. Johnson, executive secretary of the party, declared to-night that the president of the Chicago Federation of Labor would become the next Mayor of Chicago by a vote of more than 225,000 and a plurality of between 50,000 and 75,000. He said that the so-called "silent vote" was going to the labor party.

Labor in a One-Day Strike
A feature of to-morrow's election, if it materializes according to the plans of the Labor party, will be a one-day strike of between 50,000 and 100,000 union workers, who are expected actually to picket the polls in the interest of their candidates. The statement was made to-night that almost 100 union locals had taken affirmative action on the strike proposition and that election day would be inaugurated with members of the milkmen's union quitting promptly at midnight, after having delivered Tuesday's milk supply.

The downtown district of Chicago was in a frenzy of excitement to-night despite the cold weather. The candidates filled speaking engagements to a late hour, while their adherents kept up a din in the streets.

The party officials to be elected, besides the Mayor, are City Clerk, Treasurer, municipal and superior judges and thirty-five aldermen. The Republican, Democratic, Labor and Socialist parties have full tickets in the field, the only independent candidate being Hoyne for Mayor.

Wed by Bogus British Officer, Asks Freedom

acquaintances and through them gained the confidence of New York society. It was during the height of his notoriety here that Miss Brainard met him. This was on July 5, 1916. She tells the story of their wooing thus:

"The glamour which surrounded the defendant and the sympathy excited by his honorable wounds which he professed to have received on the battlefield led the defendant to listen to his proposals of marriage. Proposals which soon became importunities, as the defendant represented that he was compelled to return shortly to England; that I was essential to his happiness and that I go with him as his wife."

The wedding was solemnized in the Little Church Around the Corner by the Rev. G. C. Houghton. Archer gave his wife many expensive wedding gifts, and took her to live at the Gramatan in Bronxville. Subsequently they visited Chevy Chase, where he persuaded her to capitulate to the charm of her husband's manner and bearing.

On Thanksgiving, 1916, the complainant returned to her family to spend the holiday, her husband remaining in New York to pursue his war activities. At Christmas time he went to Washington, and there, on January 7, 1917, was arrested, charged with obtaining funds under false representations. He was sent to Washington Asylum and Jail for medical treatment, and after remaining there eleven months pleaded guilty to the charge against him, receiving a sentence of three years.

During this period he sent no word to his wife, and she did not hear of him again until it was announced that he had been arrested in London for forgery. In the mean time she had given birth to a daughter, Rosemary Brainard Grimwood, who will be two years old in June.

Investigation by her family, she says, disclosed the record of her husband.

"He was not only an adventurer," she relates, "but a fraud of the worst type, masquerading under an assumed and stolen name."

Investigation by the Brainard family disclosed that Archer had adopted the name of Grimwood because he had been employed in London by a barrister of that name. This man died and it is said Archer took his passport.

He was given a hearing for forgery at the Old Bailey after his arrest in London, but was discharged from custody on March 4 of this year. Justice Colahan signed an order yesterday serving Archer by publication in the annulment suit.

Mother Must Tell Court How Child's Body Was Bruised

Mrs. Pauline Channery Held in Bail to Explain Welts on Baby Boy; She Says She Wants Child Back

Little Morris Channery, a twentieth edition of Oliver Twist, was having his photograph taken when a Tribune reporter called to see him yesterday afternoon. For a time he was inaccessible, for not only was his bright little face being photographed, but also his bruised body.

While this was going on his mother, Mrs. Pauline Channery, of 305 East 102d Street, who is alleged to have inflicted the blows on the child, was returning to her home under bail. Her case comes up for trial this afternoon.

According to the official report of Dr. W. T. Gibb, examining physician of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, Morris has "fifteen contusions and abrasions on his body, measuring from one-half to two inches in diameter." Dr. Gibb adds that these injuries are all recent and, in his opinion, were produced by an assault with some weapon.

The boy was smiling serenely when he emerged from having his photograph taken and walked away to be examined by the doctor with an air which seemed to indicate that it was something of a novelty for him to be fussed over.

The stories told by the police authorities, neighbors of the Channerys and the mother herself are all contradictory. Morris can contribute but little information relative to the case beyond the evidence on his ill-nourished little body.

Neighbors living in apartments adjacent to the Channery family agreed that Morris should never be allowed to return to his mother. She is about twenty-four years old. Before her marriage her name was Pauline Goldberg.

"I want my baby back. I like my baby," asserted Mrs. Channery, when seen at her home after being let out on bail by Judge Sweitzer. Vigorously gesticulating she tried to demonstrate how Morris hurt his arm by falling on the gas stove when he was playing with the baby. In broken English she told of the hard time she had had bringing him up. His father—not her present husband—had only allowed her $8 a month, and she had to work in a waist factory, she said.

Henry Guggenheim Weds Despite Court Decree

Divorced Husband of Janet Beecher Marries Gwendolyn Wormser

When Henry Guggenheim was divorced by his wife, Janet Beecher, the actress, last Friday, Supreme Court Justice Tompkins in the White Plains court added to the decree the following sentence:

"The defendant is forbidden to marry during the lifetime of the plaintiff."

Yesterday, Mr. Guggenheim and Miss Gwendolyn Wormser, whom he took out to a license to wed the day before the divorce decree was signed, were married in Jersey City by a Police Court magistrate.

The couple removed themselves from the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of New York at 12:30 yesterday afternoon when they were ferried over to Jersey in an automobile. Two other automobiles accompanied them with the wedding party, which included the bride's mother, Mrs. Maurice F. Wormser, of 45 East Eighty-third Street.

Magistrate Leo Sullivan performed the ceremony. Miss Marie Verhau and Elias Steinberg, of Jersey City, acted as witnesses. At the Wormser home last night it was said that Mr. Guggenheim and his bride had left the city.

Soldiers of 27th Show Their Feeling at Movies
CAMP UPTON, March 31.—Soldiers of the 27th Division greeted with prolonged hissing a picture of Mayor Hylan with William R. Hearst when it was shown on the screen last night in one of the camp theatres. The picture was in the motion pictures of the division parade in New York.

The first 2,000 men were discharged to-day, and to-morrow's schedule calls for the discharge of 5,000 more, with a similar number Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. To-day's demobilization was of up-state troops, who left in four sections, three for Buffalo and one for Rochester, where parades are to be held to-morrow.

20 Per Cent Raise in Telegraph Rates Is Made Effective

Burleson Orders Increase in Domestic Tariffs Despite Postal Company's Protest, Secretary Deegan Says

Increase of 20 per cent in domestic telegraph rates went into effect through-out the United States yesterday. This increase was ordered by Postmaster General Burleson over the protest of the Postal company, William J. Deegan, secretary of that company, said yesterday.

The order of the Postmaster General, who operates the telephone and telegraph companies for the government, was announced March 29. Mr. Deegan, Clarence H. Mackay, and the chief officers, directors and owners of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, were removed from all duties in connection with operation of the company by the government by the Postmaster General.

The proposal for the rate increase was put up to us in January by the representatives of the Western Union Company, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Postoffice Department," Mr. Deegan said yesterday. "The Postal protested against the increase, declaring that so far as the Postal company was concerned it was unnecessary. The divorcing of the Postal officers from operation of the company has removed embarrassment of putting the increase into effect over the Postal protest."

Among the forty companies embraced in the Postal company are several operating telephone lines in Texas and the Southwest. Mr. Deegan said yesterday that up to the time of the removal of the officers the new schedule of long distance rates ordered in February by the Postmaster General had not been put into effect on those lines. The new rates, Mr. Deegan said, had proved to be an increase instead of a decrease.

A test trip will be made through the tunnel this afternoon, but the contractors stated yesterday that everything would not be in readiness for the public before another two weeks.
